Velina: Sikyonia’s Serene Mountain Sanctuary

In the heart of mountainous Sikyonia, where green meets the blue of the sky and tranquillity reigns supreme, lies Velina. One of the picturesque villages of the Municipality of Sikyona, Velina offers an authentic Greek countryside experience, far from the hustle and bustle of the city, yet easily accessible from Kiato.

Nestled in a lush green landscape, Velina retains its traditional character, inviting visitors to discover the rich nature, history, and flavours of the region. It is a destination for all seasons, ideal for those seeking peace, hiking, and contact with genuine Greek hospitality.

The Identity of Velina: Character and Environment

Velina is a mountain village characterized by the harmonious coexistence of human presence with nature. Stone houses, traditional courtyards, and narrow streets create a picture that transports the visitor to other times. Its architecture reflects the tradition of mountainous Corinthia, with local materials predominating.

The natural environment around Velina is rich and impressive. Dense forests, small valleys, and springs compose a landscape ideal for exploration. The view from the higher points of the village offers a panorama of Sikyonia, with the surrounding mountains stretching majestically and the clean air filling the senses.

Mountain Landscape and Flora

Velina's landscape is characterized by its intense vegetation. Forests of fir trees, chestnut trees, and plane trees create a cool refuge, even during the warmest summer months. The area is rich in herbs and wildflowers, which bloom in spring, offering a unique spectacle of colours and aromas. Nature lovers will be thrilled by the variety of flora and fauna hosted in the area.
