Agios Georgios Church, Psari

The church of Agios Georgios stands in the mountain village of Psari, a picturesque wine-growing settlement of upland Corinthia where the Agiorgitiko grape is cultivated at altitudes of 650–850 metres. Dedicated to the soldier-saint George, it is a landmark for the village and a living part of the local religious tradition, surrounded by vineyards, crisp mountain air and views of the encircling peaks.
