Tournakis (Theochari) House

The Tournakis House, also known as the Theochari House, is a listed neoclassical building in the centre of Kiato, distinguished by its elegant architecture and remarkable painted ceilings. It passed to the Theochari family in 1919 and later into municipal ownership, which restored it. Today it houses the Municipal Art Gallery, making it both a refined example of Kiato's urban architecture and a living cultural space where residents and visitors can enjoy exhibitions in a beautifully preserved historic setting.
