ASO Warehouses

The ASO Warehouses are a complex of imposing stone buildings on the Kiato seafront, a monument to the industrial heritage left by the Corinthian currant trade. The earliest structures date to the late 19th century and were expanded in 1932, later passing to the Autonomous Currant Organisation (ASO), which gave them their name. Listed as protected and now owned by the Municipality, they have recently been reborn as a modern cultural centre, breathing new life into the town's historic waterfront.
