Mansions of Goura

In the mountain village of Goura, set on the slopes of Mount Kyllini (Zireia) at around 956 metres, a handful of imposing 19th-century stone mansions still stand. The Oikonomou-Gouras, Sarlis and Mourtis houses, skilfully built from the local honey-coloured poros stone, recall the village's former prosperity and its architectural tradition. Together with the central square and its stone church, they form a picturesque ensemble well worth a stroll.
